All First Year Dragons are required to complete Sections A-F using only #2 Gremlin Blood Ink—no exceptions. You will have three human hours (1004 Dragon hours) to complete the exam. No talking, fire-breathing, or mind reading spells will be tolerated.

SECTION A: GENERAL DRAGON COMPREHENSION

1) In your own words, describe your duties and responsibilities as a Dragon.

Right. My Grandfather only tells me this like a MIL. I sometimes every day here it goes— As a Dragon, it is my destiny to act as guardian, protector, and champion to the magical creatures and beings secretly living among humans in my territory—New York City, USA.

Wait - there's also some other thing something about the council member I can't quite remember as well. Probably not too

2) Provide a brief history of the Dragon Hordes.

Going I totally remember studying this part while I was checking out the X Games on TV last week. Turn back rules.

Dragons are the most powerful of all magical creatures. Because of this awesome magical power, we dragons were long ago designated to be the protectors of the magical realm and all its denizens. Dragons have always been like the noble superheros of the magical world. I mean, who could resist that?

Dragons are ancient creatures that come in a variety of species. I am a Chinese Red-Rose-Red, which works out well because red happens to be a totally styling color on me. Red goes well with my NY Mets hat. Red also matches the sweet seeds on my skirt board, which - oh hold up - I'm drifting aren't I? Dragons warned me about that. He's going to get all next down is I think this fast. Back to business.

Dragons have been around forever. In China dragons were considered by humans to be benevolent spirits of good fortune who controlled the weather and rain. In Japan humans knew dragons as large, swift creatures who would appear to lost travelers. In Medieval Europe dragons were negatively stereotyped as ferocious, dangerous creatures who were hunted to near extinction by knights. In fact, dragons have a rich history in all parts of the world except here. I guess that's where I come in.

3) List a Dragon's basic powers and describe them:

1) DRAGON BREATH

Dragons mainly breathe fire but can also exhale other cool stuff like lightning, frost, steam, fog, electrical current, sonic blasts, ultraviolet light, etc. I'm still working on controlling the basic fire stuff — which might explain why I accidentally blasted a hole in a wall in the sacred Dragon Council Chamber on my way into this test. Sorry about that, my lord.

2) FLIGHT

All but a few rare wingless varieties of Dragons can fly. But it takes practice. This happens to be one of my life's greatest regrets. I can't fly yet. I do occasionally slam through windows and high-rise buildings but that's normal for a First-Year Dragon, uh, right?

3) SUPER SENSES — EYESIGHT, SMELL, HEARING

Dragons have the eyes of a hawk, the nose of a bloodhound, and the ears of a bat. Very cool stuff. FYI, comes in handy. I can smell a Monk cooking broccoli from inside blocks of ice and track plans to our dinner at Trues. I can also tell when the cat girls at school are whispering to check out if they're talking about me. Usually they're not.

Actually, never.

4) SCALES, TALONS, AND TAIL

Dragons have tough fire-resistant scales super strong fangs and a spiked whip-like tail. All very useful when I have to dispatch some of my friends' kung fu fighting moves. Bad dudes beware.

3) Briefly describe a Dragon's magical abilities, potential, and restrictions.

OOOH, I know this one! Dragons have almost unlimited magical potential. With the right combination of magical herbs, objects, and willpower, Dragons can do all kinds of cool stuff like turn invisible, shape shift, fly through anything, gain super speed, control the weather, and cast a variety of other really tight magical spells. I can't wait to get up in on some of that magic.

SECTION B: MAGICAL CREATURES AND THEIR HABITS

1) Provide a history of magical creatures from the time of Myth and Folklore to the present day.

Once upon a time, the world was openly populated with magical creatures of all kinds who lived side by side with humans. Unicorns roamed the hills. Every corner's corner had its very own succubus or elf. Leprechauns hid pots of gold at the end of every rainbow. Wizards would find magic in the water down. It was totally Fairy Tale central.

But as the human population grew and humans were advanced, the need for and tolerance of magical beings greatly declined. Most were hunted to near extinction. In order to adapt and survive, magical creatures began to blend into the human world and were remained hidden all over the world to this day. Humans were less tolerant that these creatures did and out or better yet, that they were extinct at all.

Today, a wide variety of magical creatures barely provide a select number of human cities around the globe. Some hidden magical beings like elves, orcs, leprechauns, etc. are actually pros for human and interact early openly with the general population, though it might require using a pair of painted ears or seven weaves of white like Series and sport as are often mistaken for being real or for being magical. Large and/or secret magical creatures (Trolls, imps, and etc.) often avoid being seen, remaining hidden within the cities themselves. Small spaces like underground tunnels, beneath bridges, deserted parts of the roofs of tall buildings make ideal locations for these hidden magical societies.

2) Describe how Dragons have been able to adapt to today's human-dominated world.

Dragons have managed to successfully blend in with human society in two ways. First, Dragons have been magically breeding as the dominant Dragon gene slips a generation. Every other generation of Dragons, half of it is actually dragons, so not unlike Dragon culture or appearance in any way. Secondly, dragons have used their shape-shifting power to ensure that the generations of dragons were not in dragon dominant.

creats appear as humans at birth and retain the human form as their natural state. Dragon traits do not manifest themselves at adult puberty.

Werk, I didn't even know I was a dragon until my friends sprung it on me last year. I'm still reeling. Imagine my surprise. I was doing thinking I'm an average, normal kid and then this old dude is all like "hey, guess what? You're an enchanted fire-breathing beast with an important magical destiny! Pretty heavy stuff. I even was. I'm losing focus again aren't I?" Grimlock is gonna throw the me oh snap. I only have two hours left.

3) Briefly provide an overview of the magical citizens and communities that inhabit your specific Dragon territory.

New York City is the great melting pot, made. Little Italy, Chinatown, Harlem. Every few blocks is a new world. And the magic creatures make it a melting pot within a melting pot. We're not a herd of unicorns in Central Park. A Leprechaun stock exchange on Wall Street. There's Cerebus, the Triborough Troll Bridge. The most diversity between magic and some, the underworld of Hudson Mermaids, the North Jersey Goblin Capital, and especially the MADUS BAZAAR where all the magical creatures get together. The list goes on and on. I totally ♥ New York City of MAGIA!

DRAGON STUDENT PERSONAL INFORMATION

The following will be kept by the council in your permanent Dragon records file. Please include photographs and brief descriptions of the following:

1) Dragon Student (yourself)

JAKE LONG, of your service. Not much to say really. I'm a pretty average fourteen year old. You know, except for this whole dragon thing. I like video games, extreme sports, all sorts of music, the occasional comic book. Man, please with the lakes (though I technically have only been out on one date). What can I say? What you see is what you get.

I pretty much rock.

Honesty and humility are the cornerstones of all Dragon Training.

2) Your Dragon Master

My Grandpa (Master Aun) his real name is LAO SHI. He comes from a long line of powerful and influential Chinese Dragons and recently immigrated to the U.S. in order to take me under his wing (and I mean literally under his wing) and train me to be the first American Dragon. Grandpa bought an electronics store on Canal Street in San Francisco and is using it as the location front, for my drawing studio.

He is a very patient, organ=ed, polite and proper. Half the time I have no idea what he's talking about. He says stuff like - "The oil moves very slowly, but the mountain is patient." Say what? At the same time, he doesn't seem to understand me much either when I throw terms like "phot" and "slings" along at him. Skat boarding and rap music are just way beyond him. Despite our communication gap, we've somehow managed to make it all work. I never knew my Grandpa until he arrived to train me, but I totally trust him with my life now.

3) Your Animal Guardian

Fu Dog is a 100 year old wrinkly shaggy dog. (you know, those wrinkly dogs) He and Grandpa go way back and when Grandpa came to this country to join me, Fu Dog agreed to go with him and act as my official animal guardian. Despite being pals, Grandpa and Fu Dog are total opposites. While Grandpa is quiet and neat, Fu Dog is loud, messy, and a bit obnoxious. Mom calls them 'Felix' and 'Oscar' from The Odd Couple and sometimes refers to Fu as a 'Canine Andrew Dice Clay'. I have no idea what those things mean. Must have been stuff before my time.

As my animal guardian, Fu Dog is instrumental in helping me through my training, though he has a completely different approach to things than Grandpa. If I'm having art problems, Grandpa would want to read me some Shakespeare poetry or something. Fu Dog would rush me out to just eat - Pile-A-go-no dish hidden behind the juke screen in Time Square, or buy me a bag of Gollu de Fu Dog loves America and all that it has to offer. He also loves to gamble and places constant bets with his coin badge. He even bet fifty dog biscuits that I would get less than a 'C' on the test. Sucker! I'm on my way to A+ plusing this bad boy right now, aren't I? TURN TO NEXT PAGE 83

Question 3) Your Animal Guardian can do what?

My parents sometimes worry that Ed Dog might be a bad influence on me but when the chips are down I know Ed Dog's got my back big time.

Drop down, hit's not nearly as good. It's not way way drop down.

family, society, dinners, weddings, political fundraisers, etc. She mostly does work in the human world but her legendary cooking is in demand in both the human and magical communities.

3) Your Family

Like me my mom is a dragon. Only she doesn't have any powers or anything because they let her sleep her generation (the one before me and me). My mom is just about the best mom a kid could ever want.

She's sweet, smart, listens, and trusts me. Since she's from a family of Dragons, she's also been very helpful and understood standing in helping me work through this whole Dragon thing. I didn't think I could do it without her, but

Jimmy is also a professional caterer and party planner. She handles all kinds of

SPUD

Spud is sort of one of my skit characters now. He, Trish, and I were serious about it from Harlem all the way to Queens. Spud is a weird guy. Most people write him off as a slacker because we seem kind of slow and dim-witted but if you hang with him for long enough, you start noticing that occasionally, like out of nowhere, we'll suddenly start quoting philosophy or drop some quantum physics theory on you. Spud makes me think there might be a thin line between really smart and really dumb. He wants that respect and

MAGICAL ENEMIES

The following photographs and information will be incorporated into the Dragon Council's Most Wanted Database.

Provide a photograph and description of the Dragon Enemies and Villains that are currently active in your territory.

1) THE HUNTSMAN

This dude is seriously bad news. He is the leader of an ancient tribe of big game hunters, the Huntsmen. They are a group of humans who lead normal lives by day and secretly hunt magical creatures, mostly dragons.

The Huntsmen live by a strict code of the kill and make their living selling magical bones and body parts to collectors and alchemists. Slaying a Dragon is a big badge of honor for any member of the Huntsmen. The Hunt'sman wears a mask of a tiger that seems to have more spikes than a Swiss army knife. I've had to kick his butt, but I could hardly drop him. He's got a big dog and some other weapons.

2) HUNTSGIRL

Huntsgirl is the newest member of the Huntsmen, recently moved to my town out of town. She's a girl about the same age as me. I think she's also training like me, only instead of learning to protect magical creatures, she's learning to kill them. I think Huntsgirl is different than the Huntsman. Even when she's trying to kill me, I think I can see some good behind those beautiful blue eyes. In fact, lately those eyes have been looking more and more familiar to me. When I see her, I get those same shivering forest sprites in my stomach as when I see Rose.

3) DR. DENTR

The tooth fairy had this guy as her assistant, only it turned out all he wanted was to get back all the money the tooth fairy had left for kids. He said that her sneaking into houses and leaving money was a bad business model. What ever All I know is he needed a dragon tooth to make his plan work. Unfortunately for me, the tooth he wanted was still attached to my sister's baby. Once he had the dragon tooth, he fulfilled some ancient prophecy and planted it in dirt, and he turned into the huge sharp tooth monster! Luckily, I managed to stop him and I had to wear front row seats to the HIP HOP VIDEO AWARDS. That's got to get me some extra credit, right?

Thing is, when I stopped him, all that was left was his glasses.

4) HERBERT THE GIBBLIN and the GIBBLIN CRIME SYNDICATE

Herbert is this weasly green skin dude who totally runs the magical world's crime ring. If something bad is going down, usually Herbert is involved somehow. Like this time, he tried to kidnap Sara and Kara, the ORACLE TWINS, to help him predict the winner of the Ogre Bowl. Have you ever SEEN Ogre Bowl? Who can tell who the winner is? They're all crushed underneath boulders!

5) ELI PANDARUS, THE WIZARD OF WALL STREET

Most normal people think this guy is the richest guy on Wall Street, but it turns out he's rich because he uses magic to get his money. Full magic. This guy is evil with a capital E. They think Wizard is a nickname, but he really is a wizard. And he's not this army of trolls that do his dirty work. Holy trolls. And worst is he's got this totally gigantic spider guarding his vault called a Kumo. ~~And the Kumo is a giant spider that lives in the vault.~~ But I wouldn't know that he had a big spider guarding his vault because that would mean I trespassing into Pandarus Tower, and that would be wrong. HEY question

6) THE BOOGEYMAN

Your typical unkillable + omni magical + omni unknown. Feared by all. Believe me, Jason and Freddy Krueger would pee their pants if they ran into this dude. If I ever see him though, I'm totally go dragon on him and take him down. He doesn't scare me. No way.

T) THE DARK DRAGON

By far, the Dark Dragon is the most dangerous and mysterious villain I have tangled with during my first year of Dragon training. Shadowy and well-versed in black magic, he is the most powerful Dragon I have ever seen, more powerful even than the five members of the Dragon Council. He has popped up at various periods through out recorded history, suggesting that he is ancient. Despite the Dragon Council keeping meticulous records of all dragons, the origins of the Dark Dragon remain unknown. This much is certain—he is bent on the destruction of the world Dragon Council. We have come to suspect that the Dark Dragon was an even more ambitious villain—he wants to return control of the Earth to magical creatures and enslave the human population. He must be stopped at all costs.

The Dark Dragon is more than just another Dragon villain to Grandpa and I. Even though Grandpa and Mom don't like to talk about it, he did kill the Dark Dragon killed my Grandpa (Grandpa killed my Mom's Mom) back in China. This is personal.

Another weird thing—The Dark Dragon seems to know everything about me, even more than I know about myself. I'm not sure if he has mind-reading capabilities or what. But he was the one who had the opportunity to kill me on several occasions and was let me live. In one instance, he actually swooped in and saved me when I fell from the top of the Chrysler Building and my wings got tangled. I have no idea why. There seems to be some connection between us that makes me very uneasy.
